What is the Nurses Network?

Haemato-oncology is a complex and constantly changing field, and we know that the experience blood cancer patients have in hospital is inextricably linked to the nursing care they receive. The Nurses Network is a nurse-led group which supports nurses working in haemato-oncology to improve patient experience. This community is led by Blood Cancer UK's Nurses Working Group.

The Network aims to:

- Facilitate space for conversation, networking and sharing of best practice
- Gain an understanding of issues faced by nurses treating haemato-oncology patients and initiate effective solutions
- Provide opportunities to shape and influence the work we do, and contribute expertise and experience to projects that will provide real benefit to patients and the clinical community

What will the Nurses Network mean for me?

The Network offers:

- Regular updates on new Blood Cancer UK research and policy, fundraising opportunities, information resources, support resources and services for patients
- Access to our conferences and events and early bird registration
- Access to our online education resources for healthcare professionals
- Input into programmes we're developing for nurses through the Nurses Working Group and other expert groups
- Membership to the private Blood Cancer UK Haemato-oncology Nurses Facebook Group
- Opportunities to engage and network with colleagues from hospitals across the UK
- Opportunities to get involved in many areas of our work improving the lives of patients and carers across the UK

How do I join the Nurses Network?

To join the Nurses Network please contact the Support Services Team by calling 0207 269 9015 or email nursing@bloodcancer.org.uk.

About Blood Cancer UK

We're a community dedicated to beating blood cancer.

We're the scientists who dedicate our careers to finding cures.

We're the nurses who find the right words in the darkest moments.

We're the campaigners and volunteers standing up for the people we love.

We're the bucket-collectors, race-runners and cake-bakers who make our research possible.

We're the friends, parents, children and grandparents affected by blood cancer.

Why?

Because we've invested over £500 million in life-saving research.

Because the finish line's in sight.

Because it's time to beat blood cancer.
